

the KASHOMASHIRIS

The Kashomashiris must be among the purest primitives left on the face of the earth. Until now no one from the outside world has been able to locate and meet them; probably only a few of their neighbors knew they even existed. They live in the Upper Amazon region of Peru, in the area watered by the Uru-bamba, Tambo and Puyenc rivers. The terrain is hilly, rising towards the Andes, covered by all but impenetrable jungle. Wild, treacherous rivers provide the main means of access. A little is known of the people who live beside the rivers; those inland, away from the rivers, are known only by hearsay. Usually the only outsiders who have ventured anywhere near the area have been missionaries, woodcutters or an occasional hunter looking for bear or jaguar (a rare prize).

Dietmar Carsten is one of the few explorers to have challenged these wilds, and almost certainly the first to find and photograph the Kashomashiris. He heard about them from the Campa Indians, who gave him a sketchy account of their mysterious and unfriendly neighbors. Five Campas accompanied him on the difficult and dangerous trek up-river, and he was finally introduced to a small group of Kashomashiris by a Campa who was, unusually enough, on close terms with them, and who acted as interpreter. The Kashomashiris are apparently very different from the rest of the tribes that surround them (the name "Kashomashiri" means naked, literally without "cushma" or sack-dress; this was the term the Campas used to describe them—they had no name for themselves). They are a slight, graceful people, light of skin, the women of great beauty. Their way of life is one of the utmost simplicity. They build shelters of branches and leaves. They live on wild fruits and plants, and small animals which they hunt with bow and arrow. They wear only a modest girdle of leaves; they have no ornaments and possess only a few basic utensils. Some Campa accounts suggest that there may be 2,000 of them in the jungle; Carsten estimates that the total may be a mere 500 scattered through the area.

This first encounter had to be brief. Carsten hopes to return for a fourth expedition to the area, to study the Kashomashiris and their way of life further. His primary interest is ethnology; a German, resident in New York, he works as a designer only long enough to finance his expeditions. He travels with cameras and tape-recorder, to discover and record people still untouched by our civilization. He hopes his research will mean that such states of innocence are not too carelessly disturbed as their world opens up—which it inevitably will.

Kashomashiris: hardly known to the outside world, they have resisted contact with Indians and white men alike.

The Kashomashiris are a graceful, light-skinned people. The name Kashomashiri means "without cushma" (the cushma is the sackdress worn by other tribes).

A raft is built from balsa logs, wooden dowels and strips of bark, for the return journey.

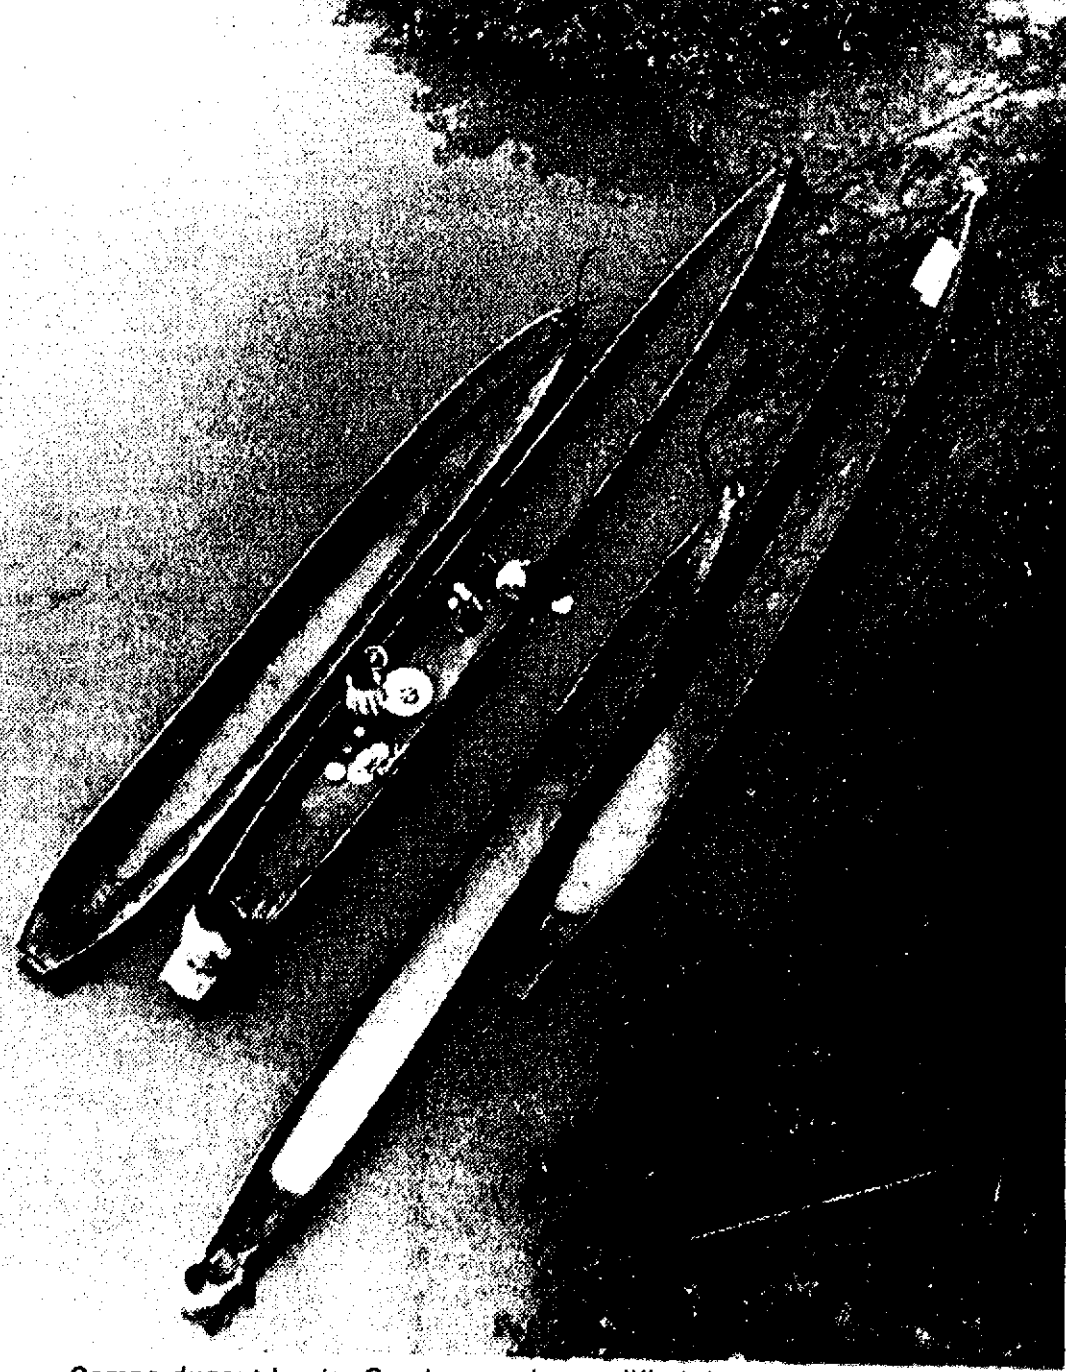

The raft has a raised platform to which equipment is fastened, and is guided through the white water with long poles.

Campa Indians grouped near one of their thatched huts on stilts; they are near neighbors of the Kashomashiris but not on friendly terms with them.

The Kashomashiris hide deep in the jungle and fight off intruders. Local Indians say they may number 2,000; Carsten thinks there may only be some 500 of them.

Campa dugout boats: Carsten used a modified dugout for much of his exploring along the rivers, which are almost the only means of access to these areas.

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

FASHION FIRMS GO ZIGGY: Junior manufacturers springing up with astounding speed (and agility). Their names are a gas and much in keeping with the times. In California alone company handles the likes of Funky, My Thing, Your Own Thing, The Mad Tea Party, Gunne Sax, Street Scene, Pantastic 'n' Thing, Uninhibited, Pantasia, Eerie Meenie and Eros! The new thing for these contemporary designers and makers is to keep a flow of goods going on a close-to-boutique basis. This helps to break the old pattern of long-term buying by department store people.

Puts pressure on stodgy merchandisers to understand "where it is." Long overdue.

INSTITUTE FOR ROCK STUDY: University of Wisconsin has institute for music educators and guidance counselors coming up this summer. Subject: What rock music is all about! Forty cities will send groups to accompany their music educator and counselor. (Note: Drop outs can be included in the groups!) Dylan's "Something's Happening and You Don't Know What It Is, Do You, Mr. Jones?" seems to have pushed a buzzer.

RENTA-CLASSIC: Hollywood's Sunset Strip has "classic car" rental agency. Actors and swinging visitors rent aged beauties of all models and makes. Hearsees, fire engines and London buses are available on special request. No electric-powered cars on the list. Smog-conscious Southern California is upset!

MORE BASIC, MORE SINCERE: Country-and-western fashions continue to go wild, simply wild West! One explanation: Back to natural; away from cerebral, phony psychedelia and back to the innocence of cowboys and Indians.

GOVERNMENT SPOTLIGHT ON ROCK MUSIC: Specifically the words. Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.) has re-introduced his bill to require printed copies of words to all recorded music moving in interstate commerce. He suspects adults are missing the gamy aspects of the lyrics and the symbolism obscured by the multilevel sounds in the new music. Rep. Dingell's bill is only one of a huge stream of resolutions aimed at not just radio, but movies and television, too. Rock radio is young, young, young. Mom and Pop should pay attention. Unfortunately they make the biggest fuss over indiscretions in print. Sort of "We can really see it if it's printed." Parental organizations now attacking record jacket art. Big hassle ahead!

NEXT TARGET OF MORAL CLEANUP? Growing alarm over poor English used in country-and-western, rhythm-and-blues! New breed of complainers ignore the "message" of the songs and have shifted attack to the damaging example of the grammar in its artistically mutilated form! Actually a smart offensive move by the leaders of the fight to turn the morality tide. Teens more willingly understand a technicality involving proper English than a "blurr" that relates to their role in today's society. Look for letter writing campaigns and petitions originating in high school English classes. The communiques will go to owners, not managers, of radio stations and to senators and congressmen. The matter of using radio licenses to promote any social or racial-religious cause is overdue for a huge governmental crack-down on its abuse. "Message music" is in for hard times in 1970-71. The record companies are nervous.

Easter finery for the small fry rivals mom's best efforts. Bonded acrylic coat and dress ensemble (left) has A-line dress with a white panel running down the front set off with a yellow self-belt. Bright pink scalloped top (right) worn over hot pink stretch leotards is trimmed with a daisy and a fanciful animal you'll never meet at the zoo.

Getting It Off His Chest Shear Agony for Reiner

By JOAN CROSBY

NEA Entertainment Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Carl Reiner, a man totally devoted to the betterment of mankind, has a word for all male readers who may be contemplating, for one reason or another, taking a pair of shears to their hairy chests, and removing half the hair.

Carl's word: "DON'T."

For one scene in The Wonderful World of Pizzazz, a special about the world of fashion set for NBC-TV on March 18, Carl illustrates the various hair pieces men have at their command: wigs, toupees, sideburns, mustaches and chest pieces. "I come out in my shorts, without my own hair, and put on the various pieces," he said. "Now I have plenty of my own chest hair. I decided for contrast, I should cut mine in half. For the next four days I would have given all my money and the show for something to relieve the itch. The pain of that chest hair scratching against my clothes was agony."

Conservative Carl, who once said "anyone who wears a hairpiece before 5 p.m. is vulgar," wears about 30 different outfits for this show, filmed in San Francisco.

"They were the wildest things I have ever seen. There were knit wool jerseys and suits with seven-button jackets and flowing ascots. Things I would never dream of putting on."

"Yet after I wore them, I got to like them. They are very comfortable and I would wear them if I were not conscious of what the world thinks about me."

"I wore two things in 'Billy Bright,' the picture I have just done with Dick Van Dyke, which we got right off the rack. But the picture is set in 1928. The clothes had wide lapels and the trousers had flare bottoms. When I wore them, people would say how nice I look. These clothes get people to look at men, and we get compli-

Women have known that trick for years.

Poor Bethel Leslie. She's a pretty young woman, with fine features, an upturned nose and long hair. When she adds false eyelashes and a modicum of make-up, she looks the properly glamorous actress.

But no one ever recognizes her.

"Yet the other day," she said, "I was sitting in a restaurant having a cup of coffee. I looked awful! I was wearing old clothes, because we had been rehearsing for the Broadway opening of 'But, Seriously.' My hair was raggedy and I didn't have a speck of make-up on. And all I could hear were other women saying, 'Is that...? Yes, it is.'"

"A few years ago, when The Richard Boone Show was popular in England, I flew there with my daughter, Leslie, who is now 12. She had talked me into wearing make-up. By the time we arrived, my mascara was streaked and the lipstick smudged and my hair in strands. I was pushing luggage in one of those carts and a porter rushed up to me and said, 'Oh, Miss Leslie, we do enjoy you on the Boone show.' Leslie looked at me and said, 'It must be all those character parts you play, mommy.'"

If there is a problem in Bethel's career, it's that she has been too versatile. She can play a drudge (as she does in the movie "The Molly Maguires," as Sean Connery's wife, an old lady (as she did in a recent Wild, Wild West), or an attractive young matron (as in "But, Seriously.")

Carl Reiner
"...the wildest things I have ever seen."

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bittel

SORORITIES AREN'T HER BAG

Dear Helen: I'm a college student who successfully avoided a sorority all last year. My mother felt I was a total failure because of it, and even my dad made remarks about how the associations would help me in later life. You see, they both attended the same college and they were very big in the "house" life. It would bore me worse than a high school lecture on sex.

But next year is coming, and rushing week with it. I'm already getting the treatment from home. Uphold the family tradition Sandy—join, join, join.

Perhaps if you asked your college readers how they feel about sororities, my parents would get the picture: They're fine for some, but not for everybody, even when invited.—SUPPORT WANTED

Dear S.W.: Your parents won't be swayed by what non-joiners (and I think, but we will offer moral support anyway.

I agree with perhaps the majority of modern college students that sorority or fraternity life may be more limiting than fulfilling. It can close you off from too many interesting people.

Opinions, anyone?—H.

Dear Helen: I am a 21-year-old switchboard operator living at home. I pay my own way, buy my clothes and cosmetics, take care of my doctor and dentist bills.

I know a few of my working friends who aren't giving their parents a cent. I don't mind giving mine $20 a month to help out, but I can't afford any more—that a tenth of my takehome pay!

My mother thinks this is too little. Yet they don't need the

The late George Reith was one auction expert who made the transition to contract without losing effectiveness.

Of course, we have a slight bone to pick with him. He organized the first contract tournament in February, 1929, and was so busy getting it on the road that he forgot to get an expert partner. At the last minute he asked a young unknown to play with him and thereby started Oswald Jacoby on a bridge career that is still going on some 40 years later. He also carried his young partner through to victory in 1929.

We don't know how old
George was in 1929 but Adm.
George Reith Jr., USN
(Ret.), was a contemporary Navy associate of his father's young partner in both World War II and Korea.

George was one expert who did not mind writing about his own mistakes. We quote directly from one of his 1929 articles: "Usually I attach but little importance to the play of the hand. The bidding at contract seems so much more vital that I concentrate on that, leaving the play as a matter of expected routine, but when I pull a 'boner' like the following, I find it hard to forget."

West opened the ace of spades and continued with the queen. All George had to do was to let the queen hold.
Later there would be no way to keep him from discarding his jack of clubs on the king of spades. As it was, East ruffed that king of spades and led back a club, whereupon George had to lose two more tricks.

Incidentally, the title of George's article in the Bridge World was, "Nightmares of the Chicago Tournament." This was the worst one, since it cost him the late Cmdr. Winfield Ligget the Open Pairs.

You, South, hold:

What do you do now?

A—Just bid six hearts. Your partner should have jumped to two hearts which is what he would have done with solid hearts and a side ace.

Fairview Beaten in AA Tourney

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Camden Lincoln and Leachville square off tonight at 8:30 in the finals of the Class AA state basketball tournament.

Lincoln whipped Paragould 69-54 and Leachville upset tournament favorite Camden Fairview 76-167 in semifinal games Friday.

Fairview was the state's only unbeaten team and went into the Leachville game with a 32-0 record.

Leachville entered the tournament with a 20-12 record and Coach John Widner said, "I didn't even expect us to get to the tournament, much less to the finals."

Leachville, which has won its last 13 games, was tied with Fairview 17-17 at the end of the first quarter. The Lions pulled ahead 32-28 at halftime and stretched their lead to nine points at the end of three quarters, and held on for the victory.

Ricky Drury tallied 26 points and Larry Box 25 for Leachville. Dicky Bush led Fairview with 17 points and Shady Patton added 16.

Camden Lincoln, the first Camden team ever to make it to the finals of the state tournament, jumped into an early lead and was never headed in defeating Paragould.

Lincoln outscored Paragould in every quarter except the third when both teams scored 166 points. Lincoln led 13-10 at the end of the first quarter and 32-23 at halftime.

Charlie Johnson flipped in 27 points for Lincoln and Stan Brummett hit 23 for Paragould.

Central Faces NLR for AAA Championship

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Two old foes, Little Rock Central and North Little Rock, clash tonight at 7 for the Class AAA state basketball championship.

Central trounced Pine Bluff 60-47 and North Little Rock eliminated defending champion Fort Smith Northside 54-48 in semifinal games Friday.

Central and NLR have met three times this season and Central has won two of the three games.

Central, with a 25-2 record and ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press high school poll, took a commanding 20-7 lead at the end of the first quarter and was never headed.

The Tigers led 37-21 at halftime and Pine Bluff could pull no closer than 11 points to the Tigers.

Chris Davis netted 24 points to pace Central and Steve Newcome scored 10 points for Pine Bluff, which finished with a 19-7 record.

Northside was down 16 points with 5:24 left in the game, but the Grizzlies reeled off 12 straight points to cut North Little Rock's lead to 47-43.

North Little Rock boosted the lead to 50-43, but the Grizzlies moved to within two points later, 50-48, on a jump shot by Edward Tatum.

NLR's Randy Gvest hit two free throws with 16 seconds remaining, then Rick Porter added two more points to clinch the victory.

Nick Avlos led Northside with 21 points and Vest had 21 for the Wildcats.

WRONG GAME

LOUISVILLE (AP) — George Mikan, commissioner of the American Basketball Association, recalls the time he was addressing a Boy Scout rally and answering questions afterwards.

"How many points did you score in your pro career?" one kid asked.

"I suppose about 20,000," replied Mikan.

"Gee," the kid gasped. "Didn't you ever pass the ball?"

Major Dies in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon said Thursday that Army Maj. Darryl E. McCartney, husband of Virginia L. McCartney of Mammoth Spring, Ark., has died in Vietnam as a result of nonhostile action.

Lew, Maravich Unanimous Choices

By IRA BERKOW, NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Every once in awhile a piece appears in a newspaper about one authority or another saying that Lew Alcindor has to do this or that if he wants to make it big as a professional basketball player.

National Basketball Association coaches, all 14 of them, take a more practical view. They know Alcindor can be a pro star immediately. In fact, they've known it since his first day as a sophomore at UCLA.

For the third straight year, Alcindor is on the College All-American as selected by the NBA coaches in a poll conducted by Newspaper Enterprise Association.

Alcindor, the 7-2 senior center of UCLA's two-time NCAA championship team, and 6-5 junior guard Pete Maravich of Louisiana State University were the only unanimous choices on the 1969 star team. They are the lone repeaters from last year's team.

Rounding out the first five are Spencer Haywood, 6-8 sophomore center for Detroit and the U.S. Olympic basketball star; leading Big 10 scorer Rick Mount, 6-4 junior for Purdue, and Jo Jo White, 6-3 guard who graduated from Kansas in February.

Conspicuously absent from the first team—for the second straight year—is Calvin Murphy, Niagara's 5-10 guard and scoring sensation. He did make the second team.

The coaches picked their team with an eye toward which college players have the greatest potential for becoming pro stars.

Gene Shue of Baltimore was one of the few coaches to pick Murphy on his first team. "He's been a tremendous college player," said Shue, "and he deserves to be a college All-American. But I think he'll have a tough time making the pros. There are some small players in the NBA, like Gail Goodrich and Johnny Egan, both about 6-1, but there is one difference between them and Murphy.

"They're in the league. He's not. It's that simple. The thinking among most PROSPECTUS—Bob Skinner starts his first full season as manager with the same old problem—how to keep Richie Allen happy and hitting. Front-line pitching isn't bad, and Phils are respectable at the plate. If Allen finally has that elusive super season, Phils will be battling for a pennant. If not, look for Allen to be wearing a different uniform in 1970.

PITCHING—Chris Short is No. 1. He was 19-13 last season and fanned 202. Behind him are Woody Fryman (12-14) and Rick Wise (9-15). Both are hard-throwers, but erratic. Bullpen is in good shape with Dick Farrell, Gary Wagner, Jeff Jones and Grant Jackson. Rating: B
CATCHING—Worst spot on team. Mike Ryan hit only 179 last season and could be replaced by rookie Dave Workins, who hit 264 at Reading of Eastern League. Rating: D INFIELD—If Bill White can come through with one last good season, Phils are set at first. He's 35, but still dangerous at plate. Cookie Rojas will be at second and Deron Johnson (from Braves) will get first crack at third. Shortstop might go to Don Money, a promising rookie who hit .303 at San Diego last year. John Briggs, Tony Taylor and Bobby Wine are still around if somebody falters. Rating: B OUTFIELD—Allen dipped to .263 last season, but still hit 33 homers. As usual, he had problems off the field. He didn't get along with Gene Mauch and Mauch was eventually fired. Phils almost traded Allen, but decided to give him one more chance. Johnny Collison will be in right, Don Lock in left. Rating: B ROOKIES TO WATCH—Besides Money, Phils like pitchers Pat Boyless, Billy Champion and Ken Reynolds.
Predicted Finish: 3rd in East

NBA coaches is that a small guard, no matter how good, cannot match a good big guard."

Alcindor, of course, does not have that problem. The coaches in general look for size, speed, shooting ability and defense. Alcindor has it all.

"Show you what kind of immediate contribution to a pro team Alcindor can make," said Chicago Bull coach Dick Motta. "Last year, Alcindor played against Elvin Hayes twice. The first time, Houston beat UCLA. But Alcindor had been out that week with an eye injury. The next time they played, in the NCAA tournament, Alcindor ate him up.

"Hayes is leading the NBA in scoring now. He is a great success in our league because he is a great player. But you can imagine what Alcindor will do. No question about it; he is the most awesome prospect since Chamberlain and Russell."

Maravich draws similar raves. It is felt he can do anything with a basketball he wants. Maravich has come under criticism for showboating. Those critics have not been NBA coaches.

"Maravich," said Shue, "has amazing basketball intuition and imagination. He has a flair for the game, which makes him colorful. He is going to be a great pro player." Shue should know. He has a player who is also noted for his dash: Earl Monroe.

Haywood and White, both Olympic stars, appear to be in the "can't miss" category also. One NBA coach noted that Haywood has the knack for blocking shots that made Bill Russell so effective. "He has that natural timing to stop a shot before it rises," he said. White's strengths are defense and controlling play from his guard spot. He is reminiscent of the Knick's Walt Frazier in this respect.

There seems to be a bit more doubt concerning Mount. It is conceded that he is a great shot. Unfortunately, he may not have the speed or quickness to be an outstanding pro. Another Purdue scoring star, Dave Schellhase, has not made it in the pros for that reason.

Second team selections, in order of votes received, are: Charlie Scott of North Carolina. Rudy Tomjanovich of Michigan. Bud Ogden of Santa Clara. Simmie Hill of West Texas State and Murphy.

in school. That degree would have meant a lot to me today. Without it, I have to work in the steel mill, but that's all right because the money isn't bad for the hours I put in. But I could have had it a lot easier with that degree."

Bevo says he rarely sees a basketball game anymore, and he hasn't been back to Rio Grande since he dropped out. His only association with sports is when he goes to watch his 16-year-old son, Frank, play for the Southern Local High School football team. Frank Francis is 6-foot-4, 225 pounds, and the team's star end.

"He also was a pretty good basketball player," says Bevo. "But he quit the team last season the team was 0-19 and Frank couldn't stand the frustration of losing. I felt bad that he quit, but it was his decision. He spends his spare time now pumping gas at a service station in town."

Now 36, Bevo says he's still in playing shape, but turns down the requests he gets every winter to play with local pickup teams. "I haven't the time or desire to play. I've got to get up early in the morning to get to work on time and I'm not going to waste a lot of energy playing in nothing games. I've had all the basketball I want, anyway."

His 116 points against Ashland still stand as the most ever scored in one college game. But Bevo figures somebody will eventually score more. "It'll happen. I'm surprised nobody has done it already. As they say, records are made to be broken, and I won't feel bad when it happens."

Bevo says he rarely hears from Oliver, even though they were close at Rio Grande and with the Globetrotters. Oliver now resides in Springfield, Ohio, but Bevo says he isn't coaching basketball anymore.

"Last time I saw him," says Bevo, "he was running a hot dog stand."

Administration Rapped for Inflation Plan

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire declared today the Nixon administration is trying to fight inflation with an empty policy and has shirked "the tough, unpopular presidential duty to nail inflationary wage demands and price increases in their tracks."

The Wisconsin Democrat specifically criticized the administration for not taking action to roll back an announced oil industry price increase which he said "may cost American consumers a billion dollars."

Proxmire, who is vice chairman of the Senate House Economic Committee, said hearings before the group have revealed that the administration seeks to contain inflation "with neutral fiscal and monetary policies and gentle generalizations."

This means, he said, that there will be little or no budget surplus in the year ahead and no cutback in the growth of money and credit.

During final testimony Thursday, a spokesman for the National Association of Manufacturers complained that the administration has not convinced business and consumers it means business in curbing inflation.

NEW YORK (AP) — Floravante G. Perrotta, the city's finance administrator, has bitten the hand that fed him.

Perrotta, guest at a Bar Association dinner Thursday night, told his hosts there was no justification for the tax-free status of property they occupy.

"Bar Association's property, lying in three boroughs of the city, is valued at $2.75 million and is exempt from property taxation each year to the extent of $140,000," Perrotta complained.

Group Hears Retarded Children Head

Charles Burton, field director for Arkansas Association for Retarded Children, spoke to the Hempstead County Association on Youth Organized United to Help. This is a voluntary group across the state and nation that works to make the lives of retarded children more pleasant.

Many activities are organized for these children, but Mr. Burton pointed out that some of the oldest are Saturday informal trips to a coke and cake ride.

The exciting highlight of his visit was information concerning important legislation that has been passed during the present legislative session that will be beneficial to improvement of facilities and education in the state for retarded children.

The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Raymond Pine. It was announced that the Kiwanis Club has agreed to purchase a stabilizer for use by children in the School of Hope. This device helps children to stand and strengthen weak muscles that must be strengthened to support their bodies.

There is still a need for help during the week days from 8:30 to 12 noon. If you have time and desire to help these children stop by the class in the Boy Scout Hut at Fair Park.

Colleges Are Still Troubled

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Campus controversies over subjects ranging from programs for black studies to beards on football players continued today at colleges and universities around the nation but the protests were nonviolent.

This was the campus picture: NEWARK, N.J. — The faculty of Rutgers University voted 95 to 40 to repudiate an agreement on admissions policy reached between protesting Negro students and the school administration.

The agreement, which ended a three-day occupation of the main classroom building last week, called for the school to admit all Negro applicants from Newark high schools who were in the top 50 per cent of their class.

The faculty supported the current admissions policy, criticized by the protesters as "racist," which states that Rutgers will "consider seriously" applications from disadvantaged New Jersey students in the upper half of their class.

WALTHAM, Mass. — A new sit-in began at the Brandeis University administration building to back the demands of Negro students seeking an Afro studies center. The university announced it would charge 76 students who held a similar sit-in Thursday with trespass.

SAN FRANCISCO — Police said Tim Peebles, a San Francisco State College freshman, was in critical condition from injuries suffered when a home-made bomb he was trying to plant exploded in his face. He lost his sight and three fingers. A student strike has been in progress since Nov. 6 over demands for ethnic studies and enrollment of more Negroes.

CORVALLIS, Ore. — The Oregon State University faculty senate declared that no student should be disciplined because of their mode of dress, beliefs or hair style. The campus turmoil arose 10 days ago when a Negro football player was dropped from the squad for refusing to shave his beard. The school's 47 Negro students have threatened to alien mass.

MADISON, Wis. — Three University of Wisconsin students arrested during a window-smashing protest last week were suspended by the Board of Regents. The protest followed a rally to support black student demands for a black studies department.

SEATTLE — A parade organized by the Students for a Democratic Society to protest the University of Washington's Reserve Officer Training Corps program drew 500 to 1,000 marchers.

BROOKVILLE, N.Y. — A spokesman for Sarah Lawrence College said the administration was still waiting presentation of demands from 70 students who have seized the administration building. Earlier the protesters demanded a rollback in a $350 tuition increase, but they were turned down.

Viet Cong Launches New Attacks

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The enemy stepped up rocket and mortar attacks today and launched a strong ground assault against a U.S. military position on the third day of U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin Laird's visit to South Vietnam.

The heaviest fighting occurred early this morning 15 miles north of Saigon when an enemy battalion tried to storm a landing zone of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division after laying down a barrage of rocket and mortar fire.

At dawn 154 enemy bodies were strewn over the battlefield, blackened by U.S. helicopter gunship and artillery fire. Inside the camp helicopters lifted out 11 American dead and 30 wounded.

The U.S. Command said three other battles Friday and today — two on the northwest approaches to Saigon and the other southwest of the capital in the Mekong Delta — cost the enemy 117 dead. U.S. casualties were seven dead and 11 wounded.

With the Viet Cong's spring offensive two weeks old, military headquarters reported more than 50 overnight shelling compared to 20 to 30 in the past few days. Spokesmen said this might indicate the beginning of the second phase of the offensive — ground attacks and shelling — intended to filter main force units closer to Saigon for a push on the capital.

The heaviest barrage fell on the district town of An Hoa 24 miles southeast of Da Nang, which houses a big U.S. Marine base and South Vietnamese installations. The enemy put 150 shells into the town, some landing in a refugee camp and some in the Marine base.

Officers said the Marines suffered a few casualties and 14 civilians were killed and nine wounded at the refugee camp.

Headquarters also reported signs of a buildup in the central highlands, the most significant enemy troop sighting in the demilitarized zone since the Nov. 1 bombing halt and the introduction of Chinese-made 105mm artillery pieces into the war.

Speakers Fear Public Complacency, Call on Americans to Wake Up

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer
Have you felt that wonderful inside glow called Patriotism lately? You don't have to wait for the 4th of July or a military parade. It can engulf you anytime and anywhere and always makes you proud you are an American. Like going to church, it is something that each of us should experience regularly.

In Hope, perhaps, the most recent local example of verbal Patriotism was found in a speech made by humorist Chester Lauck at a social function. It came as a surprise to many who remembered him only as the "Jot 'Em Down Store's" co-owner, Lum Edwards. But there wasn't much foolishness about his attempt at instilling Pride of Country and Fear of Complacency in his assembled listeners.

Similar reactions occurred at the Chamber of Commerce banquets last year and this year. Whether the speaker was named MacFarland or Murphey, the message carried the same theme: citizens, wake up! The enemy is subtle but sure in his efforts at undermining the foundation-stones that are America.

There is a concerted effort afoot to change our national anthem, and good arguments have been expressed as to why this should be done. Such a campaign makes one wonder what is the real purpose behind it. There would certainly develop mass confusion over what tune to stand up for. At least, the stirring melody of "The Star Spangled Banner" is easily recognized now, even if it isn't the most easily sung. Respect for this land of ours is felt throughout the world at the sound of those stirring strains.

It is possible that the multitude of anti-American activities in the United States and many foreign countries could produce a greater resurgence of... not rebellion against our established way of life, but increased pride in those ideas upon which our country was founded? That is not too far-fetched, for the reports of our own citizenry indolence in cases of violence and of foreign insults to our flag and disrespect for all we hold dear infuriate most of us. That is good and is what is known as righteous wrath.

How can these ills be corrected? In the United States, at least, the process of law and order must be used as the only safe and sane method of enforcement, and the polls must decide who and what to enforce. If we don't like the way things are going, we must go to the polls and vote our convictions.

The last election put a new administration into office, and from the results of President Nixon's tour of Europe this last week, it looks like most of those nations have an increased respect for the U.S.A. Now, if our self-respect can be raised to a healthy height, we stand a chance of returning to old-fashioned, flag-waving patriotic Americans.

Nixon's Black Capitalism Plan Changed

By KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Black Capitalism has taken on a new form as well as a new name under President Nixon's administration.

In announcing his Black Capitalism proposals last April, candidate Nixon said federal efforts should be oriented toward more black ownership of businesses.

"For from this can flow," he said, "black pride, black jobs, black opportunity, and yes, black power, in the best, the constructive sense of that often misapplied term."

No special emphasis was placed on Negroes, however, when Nixon announced Wednesday the creation of a "Minority Business Enterprise" program.

Nor did the President emphasize the impact of the program on employment.

"Involvement in business has always been a major route toward participation in the mainstream of American life," Nixon said. "Our aim is to open that route to potentially successful persons who have not had access to it before."

The day before, Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans explained that Black Capitalism was being enlarged to include all minority groups.

"It is not directed exclusively at the ghettos, although it certainly will have major benefits there," Stans said. "It is aimed at stimulating the ownership of businesses by members of the minority groups, whenever the opportunity can be found or created."

The change in emphasis comes in the wake of heightened criticism, principally by the AFL-CIO and Negro spokesman Bayard Rustin, of the Black Capitalism concept.

"At its worst, Black Capitalism is a dangerous, divisive delusion—offered as a panacea by extremists, both black and white, some businessmen who see a chance for profit and a few well intentioned but misguided liberals," said the AFL-CIO.

"Black Capitalism is a fraud," said Rustin, arguing that the concept didn't focus on the real problem, which he defined as the need of Negroes to gain power within the corporate structure of American business.

Stans, who will direct the administration's minority business programs, said he shared the AFL-CIO's opposition to the "exclusive implications" of the phrase "Black Capitalism."

Astronauts in Easy Part of Mission

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 9 astronauts cruised into the holiday half of their mission today after proving their moonship reliable and ready for an American moon landing this summer.

"The mission has exceeded even our most optimistic expectations," said Lt. Gen. Sam C. Phillips, Apollo program director.

Space officials discussed the possibility of advancing the date for a landing on the moon but said in all likelihood the July target for Apollo 11 would not be changed.

Meanwhile, Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and David R. Scott and civilian astronaut Russell L. Schweickart were given permission to sleep late as they started the relaxed second half of the 10-day flight.

The most important item on the Apollo agenda today was firing of the main engine to improve the re-entry position, providing an emergency route in case the main engine should fail.

The critical rendezvous and docking maneuver successfully executed, ground controllers told the crew Friday to cut down the vigorous pace and take a break.

"Man," quipped Schweickart, "when I take a break I'm going to bed for three days. Houston, did you get that?"

"We concur," mission control responded. "Three days off."

"Is that Saturday and Sunday and Christmas?" interrupted McDivitt.

The Apollo 9 astronauts removed the last obstacle to a moon landing when they qualified the final piece of hardware, the untested lunar module (LEM) that will ferry men to the lunar surface.

Sweeping through space at 17,500 miles per hour, the two Apollo vehicles, coded Spider and Gumdrop, broke from their nose-to-nose line-up for the first time.

McDivitt and Schweickart took the spidery moonship 113 miles from the command module, then tracked it down again during a six-hour rendezvous that simulated the maneuvers required to return men from the moon to a command module that will remain in moon orbit.

Maneuvering to within a few feet, McDivitt, using a gun-sight-like device, approached the docking target on the command ship.

Failing the first time, he reversed the moonship and tried again.

As a whining sound signaled a successful contact, McDivitt exclaimed, "Wow! I haven't heard a sound like that in a long time."

After McDivitt and Schweickart got back inside the command ship, a signal from the ground kicked the LEM 4,000 miles into space. It is now a $41 million piece of junk.

In assessing the flight of Apollo 9, Phillips said, "At this point... we have accomplished all the primary objectives for which this mission was designed."

In fact, 97 per cent of all the Apollo 9 objectives have been completed. But officials said time in space is valuable, so they want to keep the crew in the air for the duration.

In three weeks, Phillips said, a decision will be made on whether to continue present plans to make Apollo 10 a moon-orbiting flight, or to skip it and go direct to the moon's surface with the next mission.
